RENT DAY IN NEW YORK. Some Enormous Pigures-Who are the Great Landholders.

Cor. Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat.

The reason why this 1st of August may be styled the great quarter-day is that it was the first maturity of the rents due under the new leases issued on the 1st of May, in most of which an enormous advance was maintained. Hence the ren's collected on this occasion was vastly greater than any heretofore known. Among the items of the occasion we may mention Lothrop & Luddington's check for $7000 for one quarter's cent of marble store in Broadway, paid to James R. Whiting, the noted lawyer. Another for $6500, paid by the Secretary of the Brokers' Board for the use of their room. MUSICAL.

PUBLIC OFFICE.

For a week before quarter-day the landlords were bosy preparing their col-lection rolls, and when the long-looked for time arrived, the clerks sallied forth to reap the golden harvest. Mr. A. T. Stewart took in about $50,000. The Loril-

Nichols, G. L. REAL ESTATE BROKER, B. Astor's were on the rush for a long time; since one brief day does not suffice to call on 500 tenants and take in $200,000. At four o'clock the collectors could be seen entering the Prince street commander of the Department of Misoffice with their portfolios swelled by the souri, he incensed and embittered every pile of checks and bank notes, which loyal man in the State by his shameful pile of checks and bank notes, which loyal man in the State by his shameful were immediately counted and credited intrigues with the rebels who are now to the tenants. Among the best things in the Astor list is the botel of that name, which is good for $95,000 a year. The Park theatres, so called because built upon the site of the old theatre, are also as a large of parallel and the park the site of the old theatre.

One of the latter is of Bap-tist origin, the other of Unitarian. Mr. ginia have no reason to regret the Stewart allowed the latter to be convert- change. ed into a theatre, where for a short time the Thespian muse, in the person of change in the following strain: Miss Lucy Rushton, took the place once occupied by Orville Dewey. The theatre, however, failed, notwithstanding Miss Lucy's attractions, and the chirch stands vacant. The other theatre is stands vacant. The other theatre is commonly known as Nible's Garden. Idling in the coshioned seat of the commonly known as Niblo's Garden, from its former rural and floral character. But the only garden to be seen here consists of a few fir trees growing to a bark hut in the backwoods, with sav- will in painted tubs. Mr. Stewart is now the largest holder of Broadway property, having made within the past ten years heavy purchases.

The amount of rent paid the various real estate owners at the last quarter-day will equal $40,000,000, of which the largest amount will be immediately loaned and the rent all collected, the landlord's misery removes itself—"three months before another dollar comes in—how long, how long? Such are the sorrows of the New York landlords.

Villainies of Radicalism.

Incited by the infamous Forney, Radicals have repeatedly threatened they would break up the Philadelphia Con-vention, and only a strong police force has no doubt alone prevented their doing so. But how outrageously they have be-haved the following will show.

A special dispatch from Philadelphia to the Cincinnati Enquirer says:
"To-night the crowd is immense, and Riggs.

The crowd. in sympathy with the Convention, re-frained from any defensive movement, but should there be a repetition of the outrage, there will undoubtedly be a free fight, as the attendants upon the delegafifty thousand within the city limits.

"Forney has just made a speech to this ruffianly throng, in which he said that they had submitted for the last two days to a burning outrage and insult at the instance of bloody-handed Southerners, who were now being fed and caressed

And the well-known special correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, 'Mack," glories in the shame of his own party as follows:

much truth there is in the statement.

Did the Needle Gun do it ! war in Germany, the London Times takes occasion to say that the "needle gun is king," just as it used to say in our war that "cotton is king;" and it gives this as a reason why a young and chivalrous Emperor, who was six weeks before facturers here for a few weeks past confusion that ensued the pickpockets operated very extensively, and were finally marched off under arrest, to the chief of nine hundred thousand men, and the head also of a Confederation by which

treme to another. The needle gan is no doubt an effective arm, as all well made breech-loading rifles are, particularly when, in addition to the time saved in loading, there is also time saved by dispensing with the percussion cap or priming. But it is very questionable whether any considerable part of the victorious course of the Prussian army in June and July is attributable to this new arm. It July is attributable to this new arm. is very clear to an attentive reader of the history of the campaign that Prusssia was thoroughly prepare i, with plans well matured, knowing well what she wanted and where she would strike, with her army corps well posted, so as to move with the utmost celerity upon the proper points; and that, on the other hand, Austria, although her action in the Diet precipitated beliggerent movements, was in no sense prepared for such an emergency as arose; and had no means at all equal to the occasion; did not have her troops concentrated at coevenient points; and had no apparent plan of campaign; was not in a condition to support her allies, nor were they in a condition to advance to her support. conditions of the two countries and their armies we are to look for the amazing results of that short campaign, thought and so thought at all; between the readiness to act and the resolve to act at once and a lamentable state of unreadiness and want of fixed purpose. In a word, the Prussians thought, acted and moved with all the rapidity of the loving party, and negro-voting party. He had not gone far when he was assailed with yells and shouts of derision, and the Austrians acted and moved as it.

Cholera Preventives.

Cholera never attacks the body except in its time of weakness; hence, as from the fast of the previous twelve hours or more, the body is weakened, breakfast, should be taken before going outside the door in cholera times, and it gives a power of resistance against the poison ous qualities of an infected night air, and for the same reason, when the body is weak and tired by the labors of the day, it should not only be kept from the night air, but should be fortified by a warm and early support.

Exposure to the hot sun of a summer mid-day should be avoided, nor should any labor or occupation be continued until exhaustion. The time to stop work is when the feeling of tiredness first begins to force itself upon the attention. Eat only plain nourishing food, such as meat, bread, rice, the starches, with milk, eggs, oranges and lemons. As fruit and vegetables in cities are sure to be more or less stale before they can be used, it is better to discard them altogether.

Personal cleanliness is imperative, and scarcely needs to be insisted on. But all these things are useless against uncleaned Stewart took in anoth socious. The Albany Journal dwells upon the Strayvesant collections probably amount to twice that sum.
